Functioning of the solution

The Cloud Printing interface may be customized with the colours, logos and messages of your structure.

From the Web interface, the user has access to a dedicated and secure multilingual platform (https /SLL format) asking him to authenticate or create an account.

The documents sent are then released once the user is authenticated to the multifunction or the printer of his choice.
The service is compatible with all machines featuring the PostScript language.

The user may also send a document for printing as an attachment of an email to a dedicated address of the server.

This same interface can also host a service for account reloading by credit card.
